

The Winter's Tale

The Winter's Tale symposium

12 November 2011

Northern Renaissance Seminar series, University of Liverpool

This one-day Symposium is a part of the larger month-long Liverpool Winter's Tale Festival celebrating the 400th anniversary of Shakespeare's The Winter's Tale. It aims to enhance our understanding of this complex play, and papers presented at the symposium may focus on the text at the moment of production, its relationship with its predecessors and contemporaries, both within Shakespeare's own writing and beyond, its transmission through editorial processes, as well as its interpretation through contemporary performances and re-readings. Confirmed speakers include Helen Cooper (Cambridge), Subha Mukherji (Cambridge) and Lori Humphrey Newcomb (University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign).

We warmly invite proposals for 15-20 minute papers. Proposals for papers, including titles and abstracts (of no more than 300 words) should be sent to Nandini Das (ndas@liverpool.ac.uk) before 31st July 2011.

We are also delighted to offer up to 3 bursaries of £100 each, which will be awarded to postgraduate speakers courtesy of the Society for Renaissance Studies, www.rensoc.org.uk.

Society for Renaissance Studies

www.liv.ac.uk/the-winters-tale