

2–5 January 2015

A four-day residential reading retreat at Cumberland Lodge in Windsor Great Park led by

Rowan Williams
Salley Vickers

Paul Edmondson
Stanley Wells

the winter's tale

A reading retreat to reflect on the myriad meanings of one of the richest of Shakespeare's plays in the tranquil environment of Windsor Great Park.

Rowan Williams, Salley Vickers, Paul Edmondson and Stanley Wells will help guide reflections on Shakespeare's masterpiece The Winter's Tale in a unique retreat that promises nourishment for the mind and heart.

'The Winter's Tale is both a play for our times, touching on marital discord, family breakdown and class barriers as well exploring the enduring human themes of love, loss, death and renewal in a language of surpassing beauty.'

Salley Vickers, author of Miss Garnet's Angel

Rowan Williams is Master of Magdalene College Cambridge, former Archbishop of Canterbury, and a celebrated theologian and poet.

Salley Vickers is a best-selling novelist and short story writer, former university teacher of literature and psychoanalyst.

Paul Edmondson is Head of Learning at the Shakespeare Birthplace Trust and co-editor of the new Penguin Shakespeare.

Stanley Wells is Honorary President of the Shakespeare Birthplace Trust, Professor Emeritus at Birmingham University, and general editor of the Oxford Shakespeare.

Restore your spirits post Christmas in the peace and comfort of the historic house and former royal residence Cumberland Lodge, set in the magical environments of Windsor Great Park.

Cumberland Lodge is also the home of an educational foundation and residential conference centre, welcoming over 12,000 visitors each year for study retreats, conferences and discussions.
